General Information

QUALITY AND SIZE OF STOCK

All of the peonies we ship are grown on our own grounds. Quality always good; strong thrifty young roots full of life, with three to five or more eyes.

We do not send out small one-eye roots. Experience has proven these to be unsatisfactory and disappointing.

The greatest care is constantly exercised to keep varieties true and free from mixture.

TERMS

Our terms are net. Boxing and packing free of charge. Cash or satisfactory references should accompany orders from parties who are unknown to us or who have no account with us on the books. Charge accounts thirty days net from date of invoice. No new accounts opened for less than ten dollars.

SHIPPING DIRECTIONS

Please give explicit shipping directions with your orders. State whether you wish stock sent by Express or Freight and what route. Also give express office if different than postoffice.

All shipments travel at purchasers' expense and risk.

We start making shipments about September 1st and the season usually lasts until about November 15 to December 1st. Orders should be sent in as early as possible to insure early shipment.

Arrangement, Care and Planting of Peonies

Peonies may be planted in almost every conceivable place, as single specimens, in large or small beds, against shrubbery, or along the walks on the lawn, or in long rows bordering walks, drives, and on division lines, or producing broad landscape effects in the open field. Mass planting, however, always produces the grandest effects, especially when placed before backgrounds of trees and shrubs.

They thrive in any good garden soil, unless too sandy, and in almost any situation except directly under large trees. They should not, however, be planted in soil where peonies have recently been grown before.

The very best time to plant Peonies is from September 10th, when the roots are ripe for digging, until the ground is frozen. The earlier they are planted, the better will they become established—they start growing at once. Can also be set in Spring, providing it is done very early; as soon as the ground is in good condition to work.

DISTANCE TO PLANT will vary according to the variety. Tall varieties naturally require more room. A very good rule to follow is to set them the distance of their own height. If a variety is thirty to thirty-five inches high set them thirty inches apart each way and they will have ample room, but if wanted in one continuous row, then six inches less in every case will do; that is, twenty-four inches apart in the row will give them enough room, as they can spread out on the sides.

Holes large enough to receive the roots should be dug about fifteen to eighteen inches deep, and as much across. If very dry, fill this with water before planting, and let it all soak in. Then place the root in the center, just deep enough so the eyes are two or three inches below the surface; fill in with good, fine soil to the eyes of the root and press or tramp the earth firmly around the root; water some more and let it soak in, then fill the hole level full with loose earth without packing it, and the job is done. Keep the top always loose and free from weeds and grass. Too deep planting should be carefully avoided, as this is often the cause of shy blooming.

MANURE should not come in contact with the roots, but can be used carefully as a top dressing every fall. Do not place it on top of the plant. A little bonemeal may be applied in the fall and pulverized sheep manure worked into the soil around the plants in the spring.

The ground around your plants should always be kept loose by frequent hoeing and cultivation. Peonies should have at least the same care in this respect as a crop of corn or potatoes. Your reward will be flowers of large size and more brilliant in color.

Exhibition flowers can be had by DISBUDDING; that is, pinching off all sidebuds when the size of peas, leaving only the center one on each stalk to develop and bloom.
